

OUR PHILADELPHIA

A documentary short about grief and the aftermath of gun violence from the perspective of teenagers.

In this short film, teenagers from one all-male school in West Philadelphia share their stories of losing friends to neighborhood gun violence. They detail the rupture that occurs when they learn about a shooting and the many ways they memorialize their friends. The young men speak candidly and honestly about the way friends' deaths have affected their ideas about their futures and the future of their city. Filmed and directed by young people, the film features original music by young Philadelphia artists.

Directors:

Kashmir Alston

Melvin Floyd

Elijah McFarland

Alumni of Boys' Latin of Philadelphia Charter High School

Producer:

Nora Gross

Editors:

DRAULHAUS

Completed: May 2020

Run time: 14:55

This film was generously funded by the Sachs Program for Arts Innovation, the Center for Experimental Ethnography, and the Annenberg School for Communication at the University of Pennsylvania.

More information at: www.camrapenn.org/ourphiladelphia